

Records of the Moravians Among the Cherokees

Here is perhaps the earliest, longest-running account of daily life in the Cherokee Nation. This book series spans from 1801—the beginning of the Moravian mission in today’s Georgia—through the Trail of Tears in 1838, and up until the Civil War and beyond. In diaries, letters, and reports, Moravian missionaries noted the events, momentous as well as routine, that affected them and the Cherokee people. The Moravian Archives in Winston-Salem, North Carolina, is compiling these volumes with the principal support of the Cherokee Nation in Tahlequah, Oklahoma, and additional funding by the Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians, the Cherokee Moravian

Historical Association, the Wachovia Historical Society, and Friends of Moravian Archives.

Springplace Diary,
January 1, 1807

PLACE
STAMP
HERE

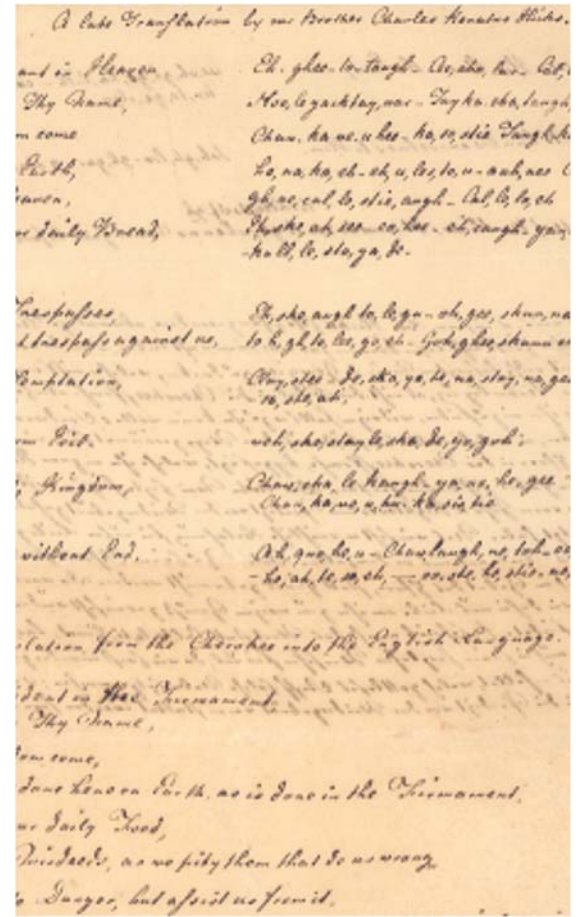

“Ambitious and valuable...should enjoy the broad readership of historians.” - The Journal of Southern History

Moravian Archives
457 S. Church St.
Winston-Salem, NC 27101

NEW in Fall 2017
Latest Volume of Records: Cherokees

Moravian Archives is an agency of the Moravian Church in North America, Southern Province.

Anna Rosina Gambold's copy of Charles Hicks's rendition of the Lord's Prayer in Cherokee (after 1813)

BOOK SERIES
Records of the Moravians
Among the Cherokees
Fall 2017

Volume 1. Early Contact and the Establishment of the First Mission

1752-1802 (2010). 400 pages, maps, pictures, expanded glossary-index.

Following decades of exploratory meetings, Cherokee chiefs permit Moravian missionaries to “make an experiment” to “instruct us and our children.” With little fanfare the Springplace mission is begun on July 13, 1801.

Hammerer Map, 1766
(courtesy Moravian Archives, Bethlehem, PA)

Volume 2. Beginnings of the Mission and Establishment of the School. 1802-1805

(2010). 435 pages, pictures, writer's signatures, glossary-index.

Moravian missionaries have come into the Cherokee Nation to begin a mission. The Cherokees want a school for their children. Can a compromise be reached, or must the Moravians “return”?

Volume 3. The Anna Rosina Years, Part 1: Success in School and Mission. 1805-1810

(2011). 599 pages, map, pictures, thumbnail pictures of Cherokee names and words, glossary-index.

With the arrival of John and Anna Rosina Gambold, the Moravian mission at Springplace takes on new life. The Moravians benefactor, Chief James Vann, is murdered, but the mission gains its first member in the Cherokee Nation.

Volume 4. The Anna Rosina Years, Part 2: Warfare on the Horizon. 1810-1816

(2012). 583 pages, expanded glossary-index.

A Cherokee chief becomes a Moravian. Yet earthquakes accompany a world in turmoil: Napoleon in Europe, the War of 1812, and Cherokees vs. Creeks in the Creek War. The Moravians' mission to the Cherokees abides.

Volume 5. The Anna Rosina Years, Part 3: Farewell to Sister Gambold. 1817-1821

(2013). 550 pages, maps; pictures; thumbnail pictures of Cherokee names and words, glossary-index.

Anna Rosina sees her scholars off to school in New England. Just as a second mission station is being established, she is “called home.” This volume includes Brother Abraham Steiner's thirteen-page vocabulary of Cherokee words, and the Moravians' “Catalogue of Scholars, 1804-1821.”

Volume 6. March to Removal, Pt. 1: Safe in Ancestral Homeland.

1821-1824 (2015). 543 pages, script pictures, expanded glossary-index.

As the Cherokees build their nation's capital at New Echota and adopt a syllabary for printing their language, Moravians renew mission work at two stations, Springplace and Oochgeelogy.

Anna Rosina Kilest, 1803 painting, journey to David Zeisberger's mission in Ohio (courtesy Moravian Archives, Bethlehem, PA).

Volume 7. March to Removal, Pt. 2: Death in the Land and Mission.

1825-1827 (NEW in 2017). 536 pages, script pictures, glossary-index.

Sequoyah's alphabet comes to church services, and there are fresh converts at the Moravians' missions. But sale of nearby Creek Nation lands rips apart trust in that community, and the deaths of Cherokee and Moravian leaders create uncertainty for the future.

Vols. 1-6, edited by Archivist C. Daniel Crews and Richard W. Starbuck, 2010-2015. Vol. 7 edited by Archivist Richard W. Starbuck, 2017. $40.00 + tax, per volume. Complete series available at Moravian Archives.

Order Yours Today

Moravian Archives

457 S. Church St.
Winston-Salem, NC 27101
(336) 722-1742

moravianarchives@mcsp.org

$40.00 + tax, per volume

Visit us on the web:

www.moravianarchives.org

Find us on Facebook

